Her beauty was of transcendent excellence. Bright, flashing, intellectual eyes, and a face round and rosy, while her calico dress was plain and neatly made, and fitted beautifully. Her zich black hair flowed in luxuriant richness. Highly educated, she conversed fluently, and deported herself with becoming modesty. She wore no false bustle or purchased complexion; had no topknot on her head or false fixings to present, but stood in the majestic beauty of a created intelligence that would not yield to the despotic dictates of frivolous fashion. It has been a long time since we gazed upon such a sight. Young men crowded about admiration in their hearts. The old men wept for joy that there was one who had not bowed to Baal. She sold her country produce, went home, milked the cows, cooked supper for ten farm laborers, and went to church that night with her sweetheart.

· Since its passage by the Senate, public opinion has been plainly arrayed against the now shelved Civil Rights bill. There is a general feeling that enough has been done for the negroes to enable them to take care of themselves, and that in common fairness nothing more should be asked .-N. Y. Times.

A Michigan editor suggests that "now is the time to let your cows browse off the onion tops. It imparts tone to the milk."
